

Star,

We received your message and we have some questions.

What is the point of bringing so much pain to so many? Does it make you feel better? Do you feel you've done something so grand that it will raise you up in the eyes of others? Do you think that God is proud of your actions? How about your Mom? Maybe you have an innate craving to feel powerful, is that it? You boast the Word, but isn't jealousy, vengeance, greed and ego your mantra now? Somehow, despite all the in-depth Bible references you make, you come across as extremely evil. All we see from your slander is the voice of evil in your ear. By the way, what name is she using these days? Certainly you have "never" sinned. You have never stolen, or lied, or purchased things that you knowingly could never pay for have you? I can't see you, a "person whose duty is the Word", to ever skip out on debt or rent for someone else to pickup or write off.. And certainly you have never mismanaged your money so you had to bargain, blackmail or manipulate others to carry your load due to your irresponsibility. So are we to assume that you are free of sin? We can only imagine what you're "teaching" your children in "home schooling"? What a "fine" example you must be as a parent! We have known you all your life Star and the loving home you came from. Your Mom was one of the dearest people on this earth and she taught you to love and respect others and live by the Word. Are you now so shallow and weak that you have lost site of the gifts given you over your life? You have thrown away so much and gained nothing for pride. We have no respect for your actions and will never condone what you have done. We feel such shame to know that you would do this to your family. Don't defile the name of our Holy Father by testifying that this is His wish. God will pass judgment for sin. We've never read that He appointed you on His behalf! Look in the mirror my dear, a hard look and see what you have become. If I were you I would be on my knees begging for forgiveness. You will be accountable for what you have done.

Uncle Den & Aunt Connie